Major investments in solar power could be coming to Tunisia after the local government granted building licenses to multiple international solar companies. The North African country awarded more than $386 million worth of licenses to solar firms from France, Norway, and Japan. The projects will be.

The ELMED interconnection project, which will link Tunisia to Italy by 2028, will play a key role in stabilizing energy supply, while supporting the energy transition in Tunisia and Europe. In addition, a network code has been drawn up to ensure the efficient integration of renewable energy.

The Government of Tunisia (GoT) has embarked on an ambitious path to increase its renewable energy production. The GoT plans to reach 35% of renewable energy in the electricity system capacity by 2030, against 3% currently. Renewable energy is then expected to cover 50% of the electricity needs by.

Both agreements mark crucial milestones for the Tunisian renewable energy strategy, as PROSOL ELEC Economique will finance residential photovoltaic (PV) systems for 65,000 middle-income households in the whole country. The energy transition on the roofs of the Tunisian middle class is thus.

The UNDP-implemented, GEF-financed project “NAMA Support to the Tunisian Solar Plan” intends to provide direct assistance to two first-of-their-kind renewable energy projects: a 24MW wind farm at Gabes, funded by a domestic private-sector investor; and a 10MW solar PV plant at Tozeur,
