Solar panel warranties should be a major consideration when choosing a panel brand and a solar panel installation company. They come in two main varieties—equipment warranties and production warranties—and both can save you quite a lot of money in the long run. Equipment warranties can insulate you.

A standard solar panel warranty should come with at least 10 years of protection, though many premium options now offer 25 or even 30+ years of coverage. Most solar panel warranties won't reimburse for labor costs associated with installing new equipment or shipping fees for replacement parts.

In order to get the most out of your investment, it's important to know how solar panel warranties work and what types of warranties are available. In this article, we'll cover: Let's dive right in by identifying the two main types of solar panel warranties. There are two basic types of warranties.

Understanding solar panel warranties is crucial before making any investment in solar energy for your home. These contracts promise peace of mind, yet knowing exactly what's covered—and what's not—can save you from unexpected surprises down the road. From performance guarantees to protection.

Let's break down solar panel warranties, different levels of coverage and what you can expect to be protected from. Solar panel protection comes in two levels: manufacturer warranties covering product defects and energy output, including degradation, and installer warranties covering workmanship. Do solar panel warranties cover everything?

While solar panel warranties offer some solid protections, they don't cover everything. It's important to read the fine print and understand what's excluded from your warranty coverage. Most solar panel warranties won't cover damage or defects caused by:

What warranties does a solar system have?

Today, most home solar energy systems include three primary coverages: product warranties, performance guarantees, and installation warranties. 1. Product warranties A solar product warranty covers the physical components of your system, such as the panels, inverters, or batteries.

What is a solar product warranty?

Critically, solar product warranties cover manufacturing defects rather than any issues that arise during or after your installation. For a product warranty to remain valid, a certified solar professional may need to handle, install, and maintain your solar panels, inverters, or batteries. 2. Performance warranties.

How do I get a solar panel warranty?

Generally, the most robust warranties are obtained by hiring installation companies certified by the solar brands they represent. Alternatively, long warranties can also be secured from solar manufacturers that provide their own installation services. What Is Not Covered by a Solar Panel Warranty?
